Tony Alexander

Went to Texas Western. Not fast enough for college track, but SAE Fraternity wanted me for Intramurals.

Tried to join military, but was rejected due to shoulder injury from pole vaulting. Parents, both career Army, were very disappointed.

Took LSAT, graduated UT Law, 1970.

Applied for Assistant DA in El Paso. DA asked if my parents were Republicans or Democrats. I guessed Republicans. Did not get hired Applied in Dallas. DA asked same question. I said Democrats. Got hired.

Now specializing in Insurance law.

Married Halloween 1984 with guests not knowing our costumes, Bride/Groom/Preacher, were for real. Her dad held a shotgun while we said our vows.

Son born 1986 He declined Law School despite 90% LSAT. He says at 6'2" he does not need Law Degree, but I did since I am only 5'8". His degree is Computer Science/ Texas Tech. He also teaches mixed martial arts.

When the wife worked in the office, I told her what to do and she told me where to go.

We now have a "work/shop" marriage. I work, she shops!
