That's my professional bio. My personal story is a little different.

I retired from banking after 32 years—I had survived 2 banking buyouts, but the third one got me and I figured this must be the time to retire. I stayed retired for a total of 5 months and decided that was not for me.....at least not yet. I have been at The University of Tulsa for over 5 years and still not ready to retire.....at least not yet.

I married 3 weeks after we graduated and stayed that way for 36 years. I am now happily single. I have a son and a daughter, 3 granddaughters, 1 grandson, 2 great-grandsons and 4 great-granddaughters.....so far.

I live northeast of Tulsa, OK in the same house that we had built 37 years ago. Jan Neugebauer and her husband helped me remodel it several years ago. I love where I live—in what is referred to as “Green Country”—except for one detail—tornadoes. I always tell folks that I live in Tornado Alley in The Bible Belt. When the tornadoes come, we do a lot of praying!
